TIER OF EAST OHIO COUNTIES

WON A GREAT VICTORY-CAPTAIN DANFORD RE-ELECTED BY A MAJORITY OF ABOUT 2,500-THE MAJORITY IN BELMONT COUN-TY WILL EXCEED 1,200-DETAILS OF THE RESULT IN THE RIVER FRONT TOWNS.

Over in the neighboring Ohio district, the Sixteenth, the Republicans rolled up big majorities for the entire ticket. The election was a quiet one, and the nen who voted were men who have been doing some thinking. Captain Lorenzo Danford was returned to Con gress by a majority estimated at 2,500, and the state ticket went through with

In Belmont, Captain Danford's majority was figured out to be between 1,200 and 1,500. Jefferson came forward 1,200 and 1,500. Jefferson came forward with 1,700 to the good. The efficial returns, however, hadn't been received from any of the counties comprising the district last night, but the majorities indicated for Danford wen all conservative estimates. Danford ran ahead of the ticket in places, but the was behind Emerson, Aldridge and Foreman' in parts of Belmont county. The returns were slow in reaching headquarters, and the exact figures will not be known until to-day. All that is known definitely is that Belmont showed its Republicanism in good style,

QUIET IN BELLAIRE. The Vote was Short of the Sumber An-

There could not well have been held a quieter election than that of yesterday in Bellaire, and the early vote was vers in Bellaire, and the early vote was very light. Later in the day and especially in the evening, the city vote came out well, but is still short of what was real-ily expected in town. The Republican committeemen and challengers seemed active, while the Democrats appeared only active here and there, as they seemed to favor some particular candi-date. Congressman Danford was cut a date. Congressman Danford was cut a few votes, so was Food Commissioner Blackburn, but George M. Wise seemed to be scratched most by friends of A. J. Brown. In the case of Blackburn his home friends made it more than up, and Captain Danford held his own well, considering the efforts made to do him harm. The result of the election here is as follows, the first named being Republicans:

publicans:
Secretary of State—Kinney, R., 1,047;

CHARLESTON, S. C., Nov. 8.—A special to the News and Courier from Greenwood, S. The negroes had a separate box in charge of Tolbert, in which those who could not yets in the regular boxes,

Mr. Ethridge attempted to take charge of the box and was shot dead by one of the negroes who were crowding around it. Immediately the few white men who could procure arms or had them, opened fire on the crowd. The whites, seven hundred artons, are well armed and determined, and if the leaders in to-day's trouble are caught tonight, no power on earth can save them from a lynching.

At dark everything is quiet at Phoenix, with the whites masters of the situation, but the negroes are supposed to be congregating about two miles distant and no one can conjecture what the night will bring forth. Late this evening John R. Tolbert was dangerously wounded and his little nephew, son of E. L. Tolbert, who was in the bugsy with him, was instantly killed, while on their way homb. While a party of white men from Greenwood were returning from Phoenix to-night, they were fired on from ambush and M. J. Younger, Crosswell Fleming and a Mr. Miller were badly wounded and are at Stockwells, five miles from here. Cherry Pecioral

There was an exciting runaway on Union street yesterday evening but fortunately no one was hurt. Mrs. William Wassman and Miss Carrie Wassman were out riding in a buggy when the horse took fright and started to run outh of the creek. Mrs. Wassman iumped out, but Miss Carrie remained in the buggy. The lines were dragging on the street and the horse run at breakneck speed towards home. The lady, pale as death, did not scream, and as the horse turned into Thirty-second street, it was caught and Will Shindewolf got in and drove back to find the missing lady. She was not hurt in the least, and both were driven safely home.

It was fortunate that it was Saturday It was fortunate that it was Saturday and a busy day at that, for the girls were all seated at their respective tables and no one was free to flutter up with congratulations. Nevertheless they saw every detail of the bride's costume and Carrie was fairly well satisfied. She rustled to a table that had just been vacated and, scating herself, spread out her striped skirts, diffusing as she did so a strong odor of white rose perfume. Then she motioned to her husband to seat himself beside her, and, bending over the table, whispered something to him and giggled.

Miss Hancock looked coldly compassionate and murmured, "Mr. Turner."

Mr. Turner blushed a little and said he was pleased to meet Miss Hancock, and then looked at his brightly pollshed tan shoes in an embarrassed sort of way and fingered the mustache that as pictured in the medallion had been, the principal cause of estrangement between these two girls.

There was a moment's pause, during which the bride bowed graciously and condescendingly to one of the floorwalkers, then Marguerite extracted one of her pencils from her hair and looked businessilke.

"Did you want to order anything?"

she asked.

"Ye-es," answered the bride. "I think there are a few things we want. Have you any of Boule's coffee?"

"No, we hain't. There's our special brand in pound cans, thirty cents. Would you like that?"
